"Sri Neelakantapuram Sreerama Reddy Gold Medal for the best Veterinary Scientist" for the year 2020

CITATION

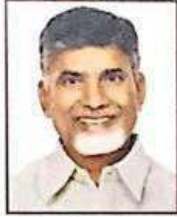

Honourable Chancellor Sir,

Sri N. Raghuvendra Reddy, former Hon'ble Minister for Revenue, Government of Andhra Pradesh has instituted an Endowment with SVVU in the name of his uncle Sri Neelakantapuram Sreerama Reddy to honour the best Scientist in Veterinary Faculty by awarding annually a Gold Medal and a citation named as "Sri Neelakantapuram Sreerama Reddy Gold Medal for best Veterinary Scientist". Sri Sreerama Reddy, a great freedom fighter and member of Rajya Sabha for twelve years is an eminent scholar, who introduced Yorkshire pigs and cross bred milch animals. Sri Sreerama Reddy, a Gold Medalist in B.Sc. (Ag) from Tamil Nadu Agricultural University, Coimbatore established first dairy unit and pasteurization unit during early fifties.

Dr Tumati Srinivasa Rao, Associate Professor in the department of Veterinary Public Health & Epidemiology, NTR College of Veterinary Science, Gannavaram born on 27-06-1965 has the distinction of carrying out the research in the field of Epidemiology of food-borne zoonotic pathogens, surveillance of drug resistance with special reference to methicillin resistant Staphylococcus aureus. As principal investigator he has studied that the MRSA isolates from different sources have wide diversity with limited species specificity and there is no transmission of MRSA from animals to livestock handlers by PCR typing in an unorganized and organized farms in our Indian farm conditions the MRSA strains are not spreading to animal handlers and it is not alarming when compared to developed countries. As Co-investigator in detection of Jaagsiekte sheep retrovirus (JSRV) in sheep by immunohistochemical and molecular techniques he has standardized the molecular techniques for the detection of JSRV in sheep. The JSRV isolates in Indian sheep are divergent and they share a most recent common ancestor with UK strain. As Co-PI in development of Eco-friendly technology for poultry and slaughterhouse waste, developed the composting technique of poultry and slaughterhouse waste and this technique is highly useful to the farmers in prevention of atmospheric pollution and the residue can be used as organic fertilizer. As Co-PI in Epidemiology, phenotypic and genotypic characterization of different  $\beta$ -lactamases in major Enterobacteriaceae and Pseudomonas aeruginosa isolated from animals and humans, he observed the highest occurrence of different  $\beta$ -lactamase genes was found in isolates of E. coli followed K. pneumoniae and P. mirabilis. Currently he is carrying out two international collaborative research projects on AP milk safety in collaboration with Royal Veterinary College, London and GIADVASI, Lathum and another project in collaboration with Eureka Global stars countries Netherlands, Belgium and DBT, India on chlamydiales of poultry and poultry farm workers.
