WAY FORWARD/ SUSTAINABLE APPROACHES

It gives me great pleasure to present this issue of our quarterly newsletter, which documents the diverse academic, extension, and outreach initiatives undertaken by our university during the period under report.

I am glad to inform that the University has conducted its 23rd Academic Council meeting during this period, providing a meaningful platform for critical deliberations on curriculum enrichment,

Dr. J. V. Ramana
Vice-Chancellor, I/c
Sri Venkateswara Veterinary University, Tirupati

academic reforms, and policies to strengthen our teaching and research environment. In line with the vision of our Hon'ble Prime Minister, the university actively participated in the "Viksit Krishi Sankalp Abhiyan", reaffirming its dedication to contributing to a developed India.

I appreciate the efforts of the faculty of CCVEC and KVK, Lam for organizing a series of farmer-oriented entrepreneurial/ skill development trainings, which disseminated the scientific practices and innovative farming solutions. I also appreciate the efforts of the faculty who participated in organizing a farmer's fair (Kisan Mela) at NTR CVSc, Gannavaram. These programmes not only empower our farming community with practical knowledge but also strengthen the crucial bridge between laboratory innovations and field-level applications.

I am happy to learn that the organization of the college day celebrations of constituent colleges, which included vibrant cultural programmes, academic recognitions, and the enthusiastic participation of students, faculty, alumni, and dignitaries. The active involvement of our students in NSS special camps, Neeru-Meeru and Ek Ped Maa Ke Naam further highlighted their sense of social responsibility and commitment to community service.

I am grateful to the constituent colleges of the university for organizing the birth anniversaries of great leaders, which were observed with reverence and enthusiasm. The ideals and values espoused by these eminent personalities continue to inspire our academic community and provide direction to our institutional endeavour.

I congratulate all the faculty members and students who received national and state level awards during the reporting period for their contributions to veterinary and dairy science and for bringing laurels to the university.

I take this opportunity to extend my sincere appreciation to all university officers, faculty members, non-teaching staff and students, whose tireless efforts and dedication have made these achievements possible. I am confident that with continued unity of purpose, our university will scale greater heights of academic distinction, societal service and national relevance in the years to come.
